Department of Economics

Engaging with Our Alumnae - Life After JMC

The Economics Department of JMC in collaboration with IRIS the Fine Arts Society is organizing a series "Engaging with Our Alumnae - Life After JMC". The purpose of session was to get an insight about the professional lives of our alumni. A short discussion on their journeys from JMC to where they are working successfully. All our prestigious alumni Dr. Alka Pande (Economics Honours, Batch of 1976), Ms. Sunaina Anand (History Honours, Batch of 1986) and Ms. Payal Chopra (Economics Honours, Batch of 1991) are working successfully in the field of art, craft and aesthetics. The session began with a warm welcome by Ms. Gatha Singh, President, Department of Economics and then she introduced our alumnae.

The beginning of session was marked by a short presentation about our alumnae and their work contribution and achievements in their respective fields. This was followed by a video displaying the art work of the students of IRIS Society and the Economics Department, JMC. Following this was the question answer round wherein the alumnae were asked about their experience at JMC and how college provided them with opportunities for various co-curricular activities and helped in meeting new people, which to an extent changed their view of the world. Afterwards there was also a discussion, upon the impact of the pandemic on the art world. How the pandemic helped in transforming the approach to perceive art, which was earlier about physical exhibitions and galleries, but thereafter it became more digitized and flourishing since then. Although being from an academic background, they shared with us their journey of how they ended up in the field of arts and the key that all three of them agreed upon was that every individual must pursue their passion and other things eventually follow. The alumnae advised students to be focused, tolerant, patient and never lose the sense of hope, as these drive the zeal of evolution in any individual.

The session ended on a very lively note. All the Economics department faculty members attended the session. Before concluding the meet, Ms. Gatha Singh, President, Department of Economics presented mementos to our guests and proposed Vote of Thanks.
