About The English Debating Society

THE ENGLISH
DEBATING SOCIETY
JESUS AND MARY COLLEGE

What forms of debating do we practice?

The primary form of debating is the Asian Parliamentary debate, 3 on 3. However, we also teach the British Parliamentary Debate, 2 on 2. Alongside, we also take a keen interest in conventional debates, declamations, extempore, open mics, and so on.

How often do we conduct mocks?

Every member is expected to mock two-three times a week, therefore there is one mock taking place every day. The mocks are both offline and online to get used to both mediums of debating. Moreover, we also have additional information and theory sessions, which are now open for every student in the college to attend.

How often do we participate in debates?

One tournament takes place every weekend and a minimum of one team, comprising of 3 people and one adjudicator participates in each team.

These sessions featured detailed lectures on the structure and rules of each format, alongside practical workshops aimed at developing critical thinking and argumentation skills. Additionally, the society conducted debate mock sessions, both internally and in collaboration with students from other Delhi University colleges. These sessions provided valuable insights and advanced knowledge to the members of EDS.

None? And..yet, all of them!

1. No point in being funny: Is humour helping in making the inherent logic of an argument more persuasive and clear?
2. No point of just being persuasive: are you persuasive in the matters that are relevant to the debate and to the burden you are expected to discharge?
3. No point in having more arguments: are you able to prove their relevance and provide analysis to ensure they stand and respond to challenges of the other side?
4. No point in winning more clashes: what is the individual importance of each clash in your decision?
5. No point in stating burdens and fulfilling them: are these burdens taken arbitrarily or are they closely tied with the expectations the motions sets upon them?
6. No point in being more or less problematic: as someone who is not equity you do not concern yourself with the punishing/rewarding being problematic/unproblematic, your concern is purely with the logic and relevance of arguments forwarded persuasively in order to fulfill the burden the motion sets out for you.
