Annual Report
Troubadours: The Theatre Society, Jesus and Mary College
2021-2022

In the midst of the continuing pandemic, Troubadours began 2021-22 with a focus on improving the society's social media presence on Instagram. The society invested some time in making reels on theatre using relevant trends on Instagram in September and October 2021. To streamline this, society members were divided into three teams, with at least one scriptwriter in each group. These teams were tasked with ideating content based on three primary themes: (a) 'Theatre Related Q&A Series', to address commonly asked questions about theatre; (b) 'College POV (Point of View) Reels' which enacted situations that college students experience; and (c) 'Emotions Reels', which had members display a range of emotions according to an assigned story-line. The 'Reels' format amalgamates popularity and performance within a short time-frame, allowing for greater engagement and interest. Troubadours saw a similar consequence to our initiative, as our reels were well-received by our followers on social media.

The society also collaborated with the college's Green Society on their online social media campaign "Your Toxic Neighbour" against air pollution. The campaign consisted of a photo series as well as a movie screening organised by the Green Society. Members of Troubadours actively participated in both and joined hands with the Green Society to say no to air pollution.

Due to the staggered semesters, Troubadours held auditions for new members in January 2022 to ensure maximum participation from all interested students. Through this recruitment process, the society welcomed 3 new scriptwriters and 9 new actors, from various years, into the society. This was followed by a welcome meet for the freshers, which was hosted on Google Meet. Once college resumed offline classes at the end of February, Troubadours too switched to weekly offline meetings in the college campus. Members used these gatherings to regularly practise vocal and performance related exercises, not only to prepare for upcoming events, but also to hone their techniques after two years in the online mode. The transition was slow but steady, and the members managed to establish a rhythm within a few weeks.

A major event in the society's calendar was the April 2022 collaboration with the ICC (Internal Complaints Committee). The partnership between Troubadours and the ICC was aimed at raising awareness regarding harassment in different spaces. Team Troubadours prepared a 30-minute skit showcasing and spotlighting the various forms of harassment that can be meted out to an individual in the college and workplace settings. Through this play, hoped to participate in consciousness-raising regarding an important concern, and simultaneously give more information regarding the functioning and scope of the ICC to the students and teachers of Jesus and Mary College.

Following the conclusion of this event, the scriptwriters began conceptualising a script for the annual production. With members expressing a preference for detective stories, the scriptwriting team worked accordingly and is likely to continue this work in the first quarter of the upcoming academic session as our members settle into the shifting demands of the physical theatrical mode. The society also hopes to take advantage of the return to offline teaching by organising some workshops to broaden our members' dramatic repertoire.

Towards the end of the 2021-22 session, Troubadours prepared a Farewell meet for its graduating members. This was successfully organised by the younger members of the society, each undertaking a unique role to contribute to making the final meet a success.

Having learnt to manage a theatre society both online and offline, the society is happy to have experienced a productive year, and looks forward to returning to the stage and actively competing in the various events in the Delhi University theatre circuit.
