18. SWOC Analysis

Strengths: This includes our faculty closely being involved in the design and development of curriculum as per NEP-UGCF. Our faculty members also have diverse specializations. Regular departmental activities are organized to engage students in contemporary psycho-social issues. Students are also involved in community-conscious practical work. Both lectures and practicals, focus on the real-life application of skills. Our alumni is also excelling in diverse fields. Students are enthusiastic and encouraged to do research.

Weaknesses: Our infrastructure has a scope for improvement. Financial constraints do limit possibilities for practical work and research. There is also a lack of updated technology for testing and experiments. The teacher-student ratio needs to be improved.

Opportunities: We can extend awareness and help with respect to emerging psycho-social challenges among students and members of other departments. There is also an opportunity for faculty and students to engage in skill enhancement, aligned with new curriculum. We could host more programs for community engagement. The popularity of Psychology course among GE, VAC, & SEC students is an opportunity to be capitalized. We could also engage in training the trainers to deal with emerging psycho-social issues. The alignment of government programmes with department's vision. E.g., environmental psychology and G20 and stronger collaborations with the alumni body are some other opportunities for us. Challenges: These include limited research fellowships, funds, and travel allowances for conferences. We also find it difficult to meet the high demands created by GE, VAC, and SEC aspirants for Psychology courses. Misperceptions around the discipline and associated professions is a challenge that we need to actively work against.

19. Future Plans

1. To launch an annual magazine/newsletter of the department showcasing students' achievements, research, and other creative output. 2. Developing a digital library database of relevant study material and learning resources. 3. Strengthening our alumni network. 4. Transforming pedagogies to deal with adjustment challenges.
