17. Details and activities of Incubation Centre/Entrepreneurial Support Systems formed by the department

The Department of Commerce at Jesus and Mary College, Delhi, invigorated its commitment to entrepreneurial excellence through AEON—the college's dedicated incubation cell. AEON served as a dynamic hub for nurturing student-led startups, fostering innovation, and bridging academic learning with real-world enterprise. Throughout the year, AEON hosted a series of workshops, pitch sessions, and mentorship programs that empowered budding entrepreneurs to ideate, prototype, and scale their ventures.

18. SWOC Analysis

Strengths - - Multidisciplinary Curriculum: NEP encourages integration across disciplines, allowing students to explore diverse subjects and develop holistic thinking. - Academic Flexibility: Multiple entry-exit options and credit-based systems empower students to customize their learning journeys. - Skill-Based Learning: Emphasis on vocational courses, internships, and experiential learning aligns with industry needs. - Enhanced Student Engagement: Introduction of value-added courses, ability enhancement modules, and project-based assessments fosters deeper learning. Weakness - - Infrastructure Gaps: Many classrooms face limitations in digital infrastructure, and space for new interdisciplinary programs. - Faculty Preparedness: Transitioning to NEP demands extensive faculty training in outcome-based education, blended learning, and curriculum redesign. - Administrative Overload: Managing academic bank of credits, multiple exit points, and continuous assessments can strain existing systems. Opportunities - - Industry Collaboration: Scope to partner with startups, NGOs, and corporates for internships, live projects, and mentoring. - Global Exposure: NEP's emphasis on internationalization opens doors for student exchange, joint research, and global benchmarking. - Entrepreneurship & Innovation: Incubation cells like AEON can thrive under NEP's push for creativity, problem-solving, and startup culture. Challenges - - Equity & Inclusion: Ensuring access and support for students from diverse socio-economic backgrounds in a flexible, tech-driven model. - Curriculum Coherence: Balancing academic rigour with flexibility without diluting disciplinary depth. - Change Management: Sustaining momentum and clarity during the multi-year transition to NEP norms especially for 4th year students.

19. Future Plans

Looking ahead, the Department of Commerce at Jesus and Mary College envisions expanding AEON's incubation ecosystem by integrating NEP-driven interdisciplinary projects, student-led startups, and industry collaborations. Future plans include launching a "Young Innovators Lab" to foster design thinking, organizing national-level entrepreneurship conclaves, and offering micro-credentials in business innovation. We aim to deepen mentorship networks, enhance digital infrastructure, and promote social entrepreneurship through community-based ventures. By aligning academic rigor with real-world impact, the department aspires to cultivate a generation of compassionate changemakers equipped with creativity, resilience, and purpose. AEON will continue to be the heartbeat of this transformative journey.
